

Training Peaks - Next Generation

We encourage all athletes on the Triathlon Scotland Performance Pathway to keep an updated training diary to help them

- plan their training and race programme
- monitor how they feel and record illnesses and injuries
- reflect and review sessions and blocks of training
- have conversations with coaches around their training load and balance of training
- reflect and review races

Training Peaks is an online Training Diary that enables you to do this and share your programme with other coaches. In order to ensure that you, the athlete has full control over who sees your Training Peaks we have set it up in the following way.

Accounts that are paid for by Triathlon Scotland

Only the Head of Performance (Fiona Lothian) and the Performance Coordinator (Craigie-Lee Paterson) have access to all the athletes accounts (no other members of Triathlon Scotland staff have access)

This is shown in settings as Current Coach Triathlon Scotland

Access will be used for

Administration of the account	Generating athlete reports	Planning
Assessing athlete and coach engagement	Safeguarding and wellbeing

For any other coaches to see your account, the account needs to be shared with the coach

The coaches your account is shared with can be found under settings under Shared Coach

Access will be used for

Supporting you in keeping a training diary	Camp planning	Feedback
Advice on balance of training	Goal setting	Scottish Institute of Sport support

All athlete accounts have / will be shared with

- Triathlon Scotland Pathway Coach Jack Peasgood
- Scottish Institute of Sport Support Team - through Nikki Gibson (Physiologist for Triathlon)

You can also share with your triathlon coach or single sport coach however they need to have their own Training Peaks coach account and give you the email linked to your account
